Responding to Domestic Abuse allegations or concerns guidance for use in parishes

During the coronavirus pandemic staying at home was essential to prevent the virus from spreading. But, for some people home isn't safe. On the 27th April 2020 the BBC reported that calls to a national domestic abuse helpline rose by 49% and killings doubled weeks after the lockdown. There was also a 35% rise in calls to a Men's Advice Line.

It is anticipated that there will be a sharp rise in people calling for help as they are able to get out of the house and make safe contact with people.

It is possible that there will be those in our church who have been affected by domestic abuse.

Within the next few weeks, it is anticipated that some Churches will be re-opening, in various forms and to varying degrees. Churches are viewed by many as 'safe places' and, in light of the figures represented above, we need to be prepared to receive disclosures or concerns being raised. This guidance has been provided to assist you in dealing with these situations.

The safety of victims is paramount.

Dial 999 if you witness a violent incident, if the person needs medical care of there is an immediate risk to life.

1. Your Role

If you become aware that someone within your parish is experiencing domestic violence and abuse, then a response is always required and you should inform your Safeguarding Coordinator within 24 hours.

Where there are children in the household, concerns must be passed to the statutory authorities. Check with your Safeguarding Coordinator whether you are to do this, or whether the safeguarding office will do this.

If you do not feel able to respond yourself, you should bring it to the attention of someone who may be able to help such as a Priest or Deacon or Parish Safeguarding Representative, so that they can inform the Safeguarding Coordinator and take any other necessary action.

The role of the person making a response is to focus on the safety of the victim or survivor and any children where they are involved. The role is not to instruct or advise about a particular course of action or act as a caseworker. Escaping domestic abuse is a complex process and you may be placing yourself and the person at risk if you intervene without professional assistance – you just need to know where to refer them to and how to support them.

2. Supporting the Person

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Listen to and believe what the person tells you – too often people do not believe the person when they first disclose abuse.</li>   <li>• Reassure the person that the abuse is not their fault and that you are there for them. Tell them nobody deserves to be threatened or beaten, despite what the abuser or anybody else has said.</li>   <li>• Acknowledge that they are in a frightening and difficult situation.</li>   <li>• Talk to the person and encourage them to open up and talk to you. You may have to try several times before they will confide in you. Be patient. It can take time for someone to recognise that they are being abused and even longer to be able to make safe and permanent decisions about what to do. Recognising the problem is an important first step.</li>   <li>• Take into account the person’s age and level of understanding, their culture and use of language.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Do not judge the person.</li>   <li>• Do not ask for proof of the allegations;</li>   <li>• Do not promise the person total confidentiality but explain that the information will be treated with great care and shared with specific professionals who need to know.</li>   <li>• Do not tell the person to leave or criticise them for staying. Although you may want the person to leave, they have to make that decision in their own time (research shows an abused a person, who is, has or is being abused, is at most risk at the point of separation and immediately after leaving an abusive partner). Leaving takes a great deal of strength and courage. An abused person can face huge obstacles such as nowhere to go, no money and no-one to turn to for support.</li>   <li>• Do not encourage them to forgive the alleged perpetrator and/or take them back.</li> </ul>

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Try to be direct and start by saying something like, "I'm worried about you because ..." or, "I'm concerned about your safety..."</li> <li>• If the person has not spoken to anyone else, encourage them to seek the help of a domestic violence agency that understands what they are going through and offers specialist support and advice (details of support organisations are listed below).</li> <li>• Talk about how the person can keep themselves and their children safe.</li> <li>• Suggest a code word or action that is only known to the person and somebody who is supporting them so they can signal when they are in danger and cannot access help themselves.</li> <li>• Talk about how it isn't children's responsibility to protect their parent but in an emergency they could call for help from the police, go to a neighbour, or a relative or someone they trust within the Church.</li> <li>• Acknowledge their strengths and frequently remind them that they are coping well with a challenging and stressful situation.</li> <li>• Do try wherever possible to talk in a safe, private place where you will not be interrupted, or arrange to talk again.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Do not make the person who is accused of the abuse aware that an allegation has been made.</li> <li>• Do not tell anyone, who is not required to know, the whereabouts of the victim.</li> <li>• Do not discuss the victim's situation with anyone who is not required to know – respect them and the boundaries of confidentiality.</li> <li>• Do not put words into the person's mouth.</li> </ul>

<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Make a record of the conversation and date and time it. Do not include your own opinions. Keep the notes in a secure place.</li><li>• Do keep the victim informed if you are making a safeguarding report or making a referral and let them know what happens next.</li><li>• Focus on supporting the person and building their self-confidence.</li><li>• Where appropriate, provide religious guidance emphasizing aspects of our Catholic beliefs which prioritise equality, the dignity of our lives, the rights to be free of violence and intimidation but do not recommend couples' counselling/mediation with them and their partner.</li></ul>
---	--

Dioceses can adopt and publish a domestic abuse statement, including who to contact if there are concerns.

Where domestic abuse occurs it is entirely the responsibility of the abuser: there are no acceptable excuses.

Abuse of any kind is contrary to the will of God and an affront to human dignity.
